The Pro Arte Quartet (PAQ) is one of the world's most distinguished string quartets. Founded by conservatory students in Brussels in 1912, it became one of the most celebrated ensembles in Europe in the first half of the twentieth century and was named Court Quartet to the Queen of Belgium. Its world reputation blossomed in 1919.

As the first and only quartet ever to reach its centennial anniversary (2012), PAQ's 100th birthday was the occasion of a grand, multi-year celebration.

PAQ performs throughout the United States, Europe, and Asia and continues to equally champion both standard repertoire and new music.

The group is an ensemble-in-residence at the UW-Madison Mead Witter School of Music. Together since 1995, PAQ's current members are David Perry and Suzanne Beia, violin; Sally Chisholm, viola; and Parry Karp, cello.

Some Pop artists are in love with Classical Music.

Artists borrow melodies

(sometimes they forget to mention it).

Here are just a few examples

Eric Carmen – All by Myself/

Rachmaninov – Piano Concerto No.2 in C minor, 2nd movement

A great '70s power ballad, reincarnated by Céline Dion in 1996, that finds the melody for its verses in Russian giant S. Rachmaninoff's most famous piano concerto – pop-classical sampling doesn't get much more iconic than this.

Little Mix – Little Me/

Gabriel Fauré – Pavane

One of the world's biggest girl bands, Little Mix, knows the power of a good melody – as does French composer, Gabriel Fauré. Their 2013 single 'Little Me' nabs the tune of his Pavane in a lo-fi rendition in the intro, while the chorus weaves in Fauré's chord progression.

Some Pop artists are in love with Classical Music.

Lady Gaga – Alejandro/ Vittorio Monti – Csárdás

For the intro of her single 'Alejandro', Gaga neatly nabbed Csárdás, the rhapsodic concert piece for violin by Vittorio Monti – which itself was based on a traditional Hungarian folk dance.

The White Stripes – Seven Nation Army/ Bruckner – Symphony No. 5

Music history's most iconic bass guitar riff is inspired by seven notes from the first movement of Bruckner's Fifth Symphony. Lead singer Jack White had classical training as a student, and while the rhythms here are slightly different, his inspiration is unmistakable.
